Agenda

- Demonstrate effect of metrics
- What you should measure
- How NOT to use metrics
- Examples of good & great metrics
- Homework

Where to start?

- First and foremost: What your customer cares about
- Then sparingly add things that help you deliver better:
 - Progress
 - Cost, Benefit, ROI
 - Quality
 - What your team cares about

What Does Your Customer Care About?

- Know your customer- research
- Focus groups
- User surveys
- Read user feedback
- Answer the phones for a day

Progress

- Time till you reach a milestone relevant to your customer
- Time till business relevant date

Cost

Quality

- Customers View
- Technical
- Defects
- Usability/usage

METRICS

We might be evil but we don't use metrics for evil by micro-managing individuals

Good metrics...

We lead. You succeed.

Simple Rule:

Good metrics lead to better outcomes for customers

Do outcomes matter?

- Good Agile Metrics help us deliver more value faster
- Great Agile Metrics measure what our customers care about
- Bad Agile Metrics do neither

Examples Of Metrics (that could be) Great

- Customer feedback score
 - NPS, surveys, etc.
- Innovation Accounting
 - Time spent in app, returns per month
- Call center volume
- Transaction size
- Conversion rate
- Number of new features delivered per month

Examples Of Metrics (that could be) Good

- Product Owner and Bus Stake Holder satisfaction
- Business value velocity
- Code metrics
 - Cyclomatic Complexity, Test Coverage, etc.
- Team Velocity
- Progress towards business milestones
- Days since last team event

Homework

- How close can you get to measuring what your customers care about?
- How are the metrics you currently use effecting your team?
